IN BRIEF - - - News & Views from the World of Harpsichords

Issue #21 Spring 1992

In late May a large Sydney audience at SCECGS thrilled to Bolivian-born but Geneva-based harpsichordist Teresa Laredo, who was not afraid to use the full effects possible on the harpsichord for her native Andean music....

ABC-FM and the Sydney Opera House Trust are presenting a series of four free concerts on October Sundays which will be broadcast later as part of Simon Healy's A Musical Banquet....

Visiting English Harpsichordist Douglas Hollick played two recitals in Sydney, including the Goldbergs at a private home, and a short lunchtime programme at Newington College. He also performed in Melbourne and at the Fremantle Bach Festival....

Toronto-based harpsichordist Colin Tilney is featured artist at the 23rd Melbourne Organ & Harpsichord Festival next Easter....

Antony Jennings is settling in as Senior Lecturer in Musicology at the Newcastle University Faculty of Music. Tony is well known to concert audiences in the eastern states, and further afield through many of his recital broadcasts....

Also hailing from Auckland, Colleen Rae-Gerrard is now full time Repetiteur for the Vocal Department at the School of Music, Canberra Institute of the Arts. Colleen is known for her fortepiano tour with violinist Harry Kirby several years ago. Shortly expected for release on the MBS label, she has recorded the complete Mozart four-hand keyboard music with Keith Power at the Schureck Collection....

Geoffrey Lancaster is one of this year's recipients of the Federal Government's Creative Artist Fellowships. These "Keating Fellowships", as they have become known, provide substantial income over three or four years to enable leading practitioners to actively pursue their art without having to worry about the mundane complications of modern living....

Linda Kent graces the cover of the Armidale phone book in Telecom's 'Made in Australia' series playing an instrument of Bill Bright. John Lehner's flutes feature on one of the Sydney volumes, and after some years of lobbying, the Yellow Pages has changed the 'Musical Instrument Repairers' classification to read 'Makers & Repairers', more accurately reflecting the contents. With the activity in Australian musical instrument making, our classification is bigger than Worm Farms, Powder Puff Manufacturers and Chicken Sexers combined....

At the Barossa International Music Festival, David Kinsela will be performing some of the earliest keyboard music ever written on his clavicytherium. The London Royal College of Music houses the original instrument that David commissioned an English maker to copy. This small single-strung upright harpsichord by an unknown fifteenth century maker, is believed to be the earliest extant stringed keyboard....

The exhibition of the Queensland branch of the Australian Association of Musical Instrument Makers featured the work of Stevens of Brisbane Pty Ltd, including an interesting tropicalized Taskin French Double copy with one-piece laminated case construction, the makers claiming durability and resistance to severe weather conditions. And if imitation be the sincerest form of flattery, I show gratitude that the Stevens literature copies parts of my own conditions of sale almost verbatim....

RECORDINGS USING OUR INSTRUMENTS

I often get asked to recommend recordings of our instruments. If you didn't get enough Mozart last year, shortly out on Tall Poppies is Geoffrey Lancaster's latest solo Fortepiano offering with three sonatas. If you can't find the Australian releases in your local store, send a cheque with the coupon, and your carefully packed order will be sent by Certified Mail.

On average, our Paris shop supplies instruments for a recording per month, which combined with Trevor Pinnock's enthusiasm for his D Jacques Way French Double and happenings in the States, goes towards making our instruments amongst the most recorded in the world. I list here three interesting releases which might be found from speciality import shops:

"Tangos for 2 Harpsichords" by Astor Piazzolla	played by Mario Raskin & Oscar Milani	Pierre Verany PV789102
"L'oeuvre pour Clavecin" by Matthias Weckmann	played by Nöelle Spieth	Solstice SOCD 79
"5 Sonates pour violon et basse continue" by Leclair,	played by Jaap Schroeder, Philippe Foulon & Ketil Haugsand	ADDA 581072

PLEASE HELP US KEEP UP TO DATE: If your address label is incorrect, if you receive duplicate copies, or if you no longer wish to receive the Harpsichord News Brief, we appreciate your courtesy in letting us know by phone, fax, or returning the coupon!

FOR HARPSICHORD OWNERS

Time marches on, but the twentieth-century has added surprisingly few 'improvements' to the historic-style harpsichord. The acetal resin Delrin, which I think was invented by Du Pont and found especially useful for car gear boxes because of its natural slipperiness, has been the standard plectra material since pioneered by William Dowd in the 1960s. The highest grade plectra are made from a sheet .020" thick which is shelf cured for two years before being punched so the length of plectra runs with the direction of the extrusion. When voiced correctly, there is little detectable difference in touch or tone compared to the original crow quill.

Now a number of makers in the States are showing enthusiasm for the latest plectra material, a black plastic which is said not to work harden as the Delrin does. This latest material is sold in packs of approximately 110 like the white Delrin, for the same price of $9.50. Don't forget our $5 minimum postage and packing charge.
